
We are a diverse member-driven organization committed to assuring the health and well-being of children. Through our IWS Children’s Clinic we provide the highest quality medical, dental and social services to underserved low-income children from infancy through age 18. Our work is powered by dedicated members and volunteers, a highly competent professional staff, generous donors, engaged partners and enlightened communities who share our view that sustaining the health of our community’s at-risk children is a critical investment in the future.

Join. We invite you to join our group of dedicated members. Passionate people who believe in and support the organization, its mission and its programs, including the IWS Children’s Clinic.

Donate. The Oak Park River Forest Infant Welfare Society’s need for funding is a function of the economics of operating a not-for-profit health clinic. There will always be a gap between what it costs to provide medical, dental and social services to our low-income patients and what the Children’s Clinic receives for providing those services. Our IWS Children’s Clinic served over 3,400 children in over 10,000 visits in 2018.

Volunteer. We are always in need of volunteers to help with fundraising and event organization, but also volunteering of time and talents.

We would love to have you be a part of IWS!

Not to Scale
Welcome to the 2019 Holiday Housewalk & Market!

We are excited to see you all again this year and want to thank each and every one of you for your continued support of the OPRF Infant Welfare Society’s fundraising mission. Your contributions help our dedicated clinical staff to maintain quality health, dental and behavior services that reach over 3,400 children from underserved areas in the Chicagoland area.

Our sincerest thanks to Kate and Paul Seavey, Sophia McCarty and Andy Hronek, Maxim Frolov and Liza Benevolentskaya, Jeremy and Alexis Hiller, and Michell and Jeremy Fine for opening their homes this year to us and to you.

Please remember to support the businesses that have helped to make this event happen:

• Dine & Share restaurants that have agreed to contribute to IWS 10% of all proceeds from participants who use the Dine & Share coupon;

• Market vendors who donate a portion of their sales to the IWS; and

• Our 2019 Sponsors and In-Kind Donors.

We could not pull off this event without the fantastic help of our Infant Welfare Society members who volunteer so graciously of their talent and time to make this event a success.

We hope you enjoy touring the 5 beautiful homes, located in our community, and find gifts for everyone on your list at the Holiday Market.

Many thanks again for kicking off your holiday season with us this weekend. We wish you and yours a wonderful, happy and healthy new year.

Hope Jaeger

Holiday Spirit & Wine Tasting and Opening Night Party
- Thursday, December 5  6pm – 9pm
Kick off our seasonal event - enjoy live music, shopping, food and drink!

Raise a glass to help us raise funds at this year’s 1st Annual Holiday Spirit and Wine tasting event sponsored by Famous Liquors. Sample a large variety of wines, bubbly, and spirits from a dozen vintners and distillers, find a few new favorites, and stock up for the holidays!

Not-So-Trivial Pursuit Night
- Friday, December 6  7pm - 9pm
Calling all brainiacs and trivia hacks! Grab a group of your favorite eggheads and join us for this new fun-filled fundraiser. Only one team will leave with bragging rights, but everyone will win our gratitude for supporting the Children’s Clinic. We’ll stock your table with some snacks. Additional food options will be available for purchase along with a cash bar.

A Few Housewalk Rules
We kindly ask that you please show the following courtesies to our gracious homeowners:

- The Housewalk is open to children ages eight and older.
- The booties provided must be worn in each home. Please wear them over your shoes if the weather is dry. If the weather is wet, please remove your shoes, place them in your bag, and wear your booties. Please remove booties between home visits.
- No smoking; food or beverages may not be carried or discarded in or around any home.
- Please do not take photographs with cameras, phones or other devices.
- Please remove spiked shoes or boots regardless of weather.
The strength to make a difference comes from passionate partners.

Baird is proud to sponsor the OPRF Infant Welfare Society for their commitment to providing quality healthcare for children in need for 100 years.

“CHRISTMAS AT THE OLD CONVENT”

Holiday Housewalk  |  Home 1
Paul and Kate Seavey
201 South Euclid Avenue, Oak Park

When Paul and Kate Seavey moved with their four children into their long admired Prairie Style house, purported to have been designed by architect George Maher in 1904, they knew they would make a few changes. For 57 years the home served as a convent, and the second floor had been a warren of “nun cells.” Prior owners reshaped part of the space, but this past year the Seaveys converted remaining cells into usable bedrooms.

The Seavey’s holiday décor and family traditions leave no doubt that a modern-day family lives there now. Large holiday ornaments hang from the porch ceiling. Fresh greens wrap the foyer staircase. At Christmas, the living room is the family’s gathering place, where friends come together for an annual white elephant gift exchange, and the family opens gifts before Christmas dinner. Ornaments chosen as travel mementos or received as gifts for special occasions cover the family tree, and each ornament has an “owner” and a story to tell. The gold bell hung between the living and dining rooms is a special heirloom from Paul’s grandmother, who hung it in her Minnesota home. The elves on the stairs recall Kate’s grandmother who placed elves on her steps at Christmas. Kate’s array of snowmen, collected over 27 years, covers the dining room buffet. The bay window holds crèches that permit the Seavey children to carry on the family tradition of moving the wise men closer to the manger as Christmas day approaches. And the season starts with stockings hanging on the mantle, hidden until St. Nicholas Day, December 6.

Amid these family traditions, the house’s years as a convent have created family jests and inside jokes. The bar, where friends gather for a toast, with a bit of tongue in cheek, goes by the name “Purgatory.”

Today the Seavey home mingles a rich history of diverse dwellers with the humor and traditions of a family that enjoys the home’s history as well as its future, which they are building.
Sophie McCarthy and Andy Hronek embrace the chaos and occasional mess that comes with a young family thoroughly enjoying its home to entertain family, friends and the friends of their children. Their decorative scheme honors the historic integrity of the 1907 American Foursquare Hulbert subdivision house with paint colors, light fixtures and trim that complement the original details. The homeowners chose the floor plan and furnishings to emphasize gathering and comfort, while art, musical instruments and mementos from travel and careers take center stage. This setting is beautifully underscored by many holiday touches and traditions.

Foremost among these is the use of fresh greens and candlelight to create a cozy background at holiday time. One of the family’s traditions is skiing out west, so the Christmas trees and garland in the home are a nod to the times the family enjoys winter together. A beloved tradition, started to keep the kids from ripping through their gifts, is the family’s scavenger hunt on Christmas morning where Santa hides gifts around the home then leaves notes with clues in riddles to help the searchers. After the kids make their way through the scavenger hunt, the family room becomes the setting for a casual Christmas morning breakfast by the fire, while the kids play with their new presents.

The home has undergone a number of renovations, including the addition of a master suite, a chef’s kitchen and a great room. The latter’s dramatic ceiling height, French doors and wood-burning fireplace create an inviting setting for holiday gatherings. As does the living room that serves as a setting for music and reading, evidenced by the violins in the music corner belonging to Sophie and the children.

Sprinkled throughout the house are family heirlooms like the rocking chair that has been a toy for three generations, political memorabilia from Andy’s and Sophie’s work on campaigns, and tokens from family travels in Europe and Asia. These special mementos fit comfortably in the environment of natural greens and casual activity that characterize the family’s holiday celebrations.

Visitors to this home enter a world that melds marble flooring, intensely colored wall borders, and contemporary décor to serve this family of two front-line medical researchers, their daughters, and a beloved 15-year-old cat, Lapusya – whose name means “gentle paws” in the family’s native Russian. It’s a decided understatement to call this house unique. Its Spanish Renaissance style brims with elaborate detail including art embedded into the walls that original owner, Joseph J. Butler, brought from his travels to Europe. Designed by Frederick Meyer and Norman Cook, the house was built in 1926 in the Spanish Renaissance style and expanded in 1950, when Butler brought statuario marble and, probably, skilled Italian craftsmen to carry on the meticulous work.

This amazing setting perfectly contains the family’s special Russian traditions and decorative themes. Among these are 100-year-old family icons with Baby Jesus, and the singing of traditional Christmas songs, with the daughters engaging adults in dancing around the elaborate Christmas tree. The Christmas tree is long-lived in this house since the family puts it up on Black Friday and takes it down the last day that the Village of River Forest collects trees! The house is also filled with luscious seasonal fragrances of roast goose and duck with apples. Even Father Snow has been known to make an appearance to savor the delicious aromas, and entertain the youngest children. Of course he expects a song or dance before the exchange of gifts – another family tradition!

The beautiful dining room provides an ideal setting for scrumptious foods, good conversation, and memories inspired by the old ice skates and beloved stockings that are part of the Christmas décor, as is the profusion of nutcrackers descending the lovely staircase. Wait! What’s that music playing – it’s not the usual holiday carols. No it’s highlights from Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s The Nutcracker! After all, daughter Arina is a serious student of the piano, and has studied ballet for nine years!

Filled with exquisite details and warm traditions, this house becomes the setting for happy celebrations of Christmas and the new year ahead. “S prazdnikom” or happy holidays!
Homeowner Alexis Hiller’s mother remembers gift packages arriving from Sweden during the holiday season. Often these were filled with Christmas decorations that have since been passed down through the family. Some hand-made, some lovingly repaired, they now beautifully mix in with modern decorations. The Hiller home is filled with Dala horses, vintage Swedish linens, straw ornaments and goats, holiday candleholders, chimes, and heart-shaped ornaments made from Swedish gingerbread. A vintage sled on the front porch provides a taste of the decorations inside.

The French Normandy style home, built in 1942, mixes old and new. Jamey and Alexis love historic architecture, and they have tried to salvage and highlight this throughout the home. Even as the homeowners have modernized the house to suit today’s lifestyle, they’ve maintained and emphasized the original plaster moldings, enhancing the mix of vintage and modern finds — whether art or accessories — throughout the home.

The family lovingly maintains many holiday traditions. Among these: enjoying Swedish glogg, acquiring a new nutcracker each year — a collection visible in the living room — and decorating a traditional family tree with ornaments that Alexis and her mom picked out each year as she was growing up. Alexis continues this tradition with her seven-year-old daughter.

The dining room table is set with a vintage Swedish tablecloth, a collection of Tomte figurines, and the couple’s wedding china intermixed with Christmas china that Jamey’s mother gave him each year as he was growing up. Surrounding the tree decorated with Swedish straw ornaments, are a Paule Marrot print, custom metal wall art exclaiming, “let the good times roll” in Cajun, and weavings from the couple’s trip to Vietnam.

The first floor also includes a profusion of contemporary art and photographs. Many of the photos come from the Hillers’ annual trip to New Orleans, including a remarkable photograph by David Jennings, artwork hand painted by gifted family members, and wedding photos of the couple’s parents in which both Jamey and Alexis’s fathers are dressed identically!

The Hillers recall childhood memories with delight as they look forward to passing on the family traditions to their daughter.

Jeremy and Michelle Fine’s home interweaves Jerome Cerny French Eclectic design with the owner’s Southern heritage. This house does, indeed, have 12 decorated Christmas trees, many of which guests see in main floor rooms. While most of the trees are artificial, a special one comes from the farm owned by Jeremy’s mother’s family in North Carolina, an area from which White House trees often come.

Built in 1937, the home’s exterior sports decorative, green wreaths with gold bows, a garlanded doorway, and the first tree. Step inside the Buurma-built house featuring Cerny trademarks, and you see a circular floor plan, arched doorways, and rounded ceilings. These details inspired the Fines to purchase, restore, and update the home in 2017. At holiday time the foyer includes a cheerful sprig of mistletoe and toys for children attending the couple’s Christmas party for 80-plus guests.

The dining room is party-ready with lavish red and gold décor, exquisite estate-sale china, and a chandelier recalling Michelle’s wedding gown. Imagine the fragrances of Christmas dinner coming from the adjoining kitchen. The Advent calendar the Fines purchased on a trip to Germany recalls one Michelle had as a child, a tradition passed on from her mother’s childhood.

The landing, with its own silver-decorated tree topped with branches from the area, celebrates the season’s illumination. American Greetings paper and ribbons decorate packages around the tree, in tribute to Michelle’s dad who has spent his career in the firm. The nearby living room is resplendent in white, gold and silver. Family touches include the wooden grandfather clock cut by Jeremy’s timber business-owner grandfather, the nativity set from Paris’ Notre Dame, and a West Virginia coal mine train from Jeremy’s father’s youth. In the nearby sunroom a painting from the Appalachian Trail’s Roan Mountain is the work of a cousin who illustrates book covers including Mary Higgins Clark, a fan favorite of Michelle’s.

Each winter the couple’s parents trade milder Southern weather for a wintry Midwest holiday in the home of their only children, who lace the season with warm memories of family heritage and the 12 trees of Christmas!

A HOME OF OUR VERY OWN

By this time next year...
OPRF Infant Welfare Society will be nearing a historic move to its new home! In early 2019, with the support of generous donors, IWS became the official owners of 28 Madison Street in Oak Park.

This building is a giant leap forward in our 103-year history and will help us realize our vision of treating the whole child with an exemplary standard of pediatric primary care. Planning is well underway to transform the two-story office building into a health center, deepening our investment in the health and well-being of underserved children and their families in our community and beyond.

More details to be revealed in 2020! Until then, the best way to help OPRF Infant Welfare Society is with a gift to support the children we are treating today. Give online at www.oprfiws.org/donate or by calling 708-848-0528.
Thank You!

Thanks to you and everyone at the Infant Welfare Society, children in need can receive Heartfelt Healthcare, including pediatric, dental and behavioral health services.

The IWS Children’s Clinic is a critical safety net for vulnerable children and families living in Chicago’s west side and the near west suburbs. Our patients have limited means and challenging home circumstances that can make it very difficult to get basic health needs met.

Families shouldn’t have to choose between putting food on the table or taking their child to the doctor to see about nagging cough or that aching tooth. Our warm, welcoming clinic in Oak Park is a true medical home for area children who have few options for care.

The Holiday Housewalk & Market is one of many ways the Infant Welfare Society supports the IWS Children’s Clinic. If you are inspired to give or get involved, we invite you to visit us at www.oprfiws.org or stop by at 320 Lake Street, Oak Park.
